RESPONSE TO MISSING PARTS OBJECTION TO DRAWINGS

Assistant Commissioner for Patents
Washington, D.C. 20231

Dear Sir:

In response to the request for substitute drawings in compliance with 37 CFR 1.84 stated in the Notice of Missing Parts mailed March 29, 2001 applicant states as follows:

Applicant has amended the drawings as indicated below and is submitting the revised drawings along with a redlined version for review by the US Patent and Trademark Office. Applicant considers these changes to overcome any objections to the drawings.

Also, Applicant's draftsman, Kathy Bettinghouse, who has been drafting patent drawings for over 20 years, contacted the United States Patent and Trademark Office regarding the objections to the drawings as stated in the Notice of Missing Parts. Ms. Bettinghouse spoke with Mrs. Ivey and then was directed to Drafting Supervisor Ms. Bridgette Gray who in turn instructed her to contact Ms. Valerie Kinard and Ms. Millard. It was suggested by Mrs. Ivy to submit this response indicating that labels with reference numbers are proper and should be acceptable to the USPTO.

Further, it is asserted by applicant that it is improper to apply a Notice of Missing Parts for drawing objections unless those objections arise to a level of improper drawings. Objections to the drawings should be raised by the Examiner during prosecution. Applicant has supplied all missing parts under the Notice of Missing Parts and the Examiner can object to these drawings if he or she deems necessary.

Respectfully submitted,
